FRIDAY, NOV. 8, 1918

Mahoning republicans elected their entire county ticket on Tuesday.

Ohio's quota in the united war work campaign, to be conducted the week of Nov. 11, has been increased from $10,650,000 to $15,800,000.

According to the statement of the treasury department the total subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty loan amounted to $6,866,416,300, or nearly a billion dollars more than asked for. Guess the Huns will understand that the American people are backing the war.

Ben Morris defeated Sheriff Ed. Milliken by about 500 votes. Other republican candidates on the county ticket had majorities running above 6,000. Willis polled 871 more votes than Cox. Dahl Cooper for domestic relations judge, running independent, has a plurality of 491.

In the next draft call Provost Marshal General Crowder contemplates the enlistment of more than 200,000 men qualified for general military service. If war affairs continue to move with present speed it would seem as though very few more men will be needed. The Hun is now in a tight corner and ready to quit.

The republicans will control the next national house of representatives. With approximately 70 congressional districts yet to return complete counts the completed results so far seem to assure republican control of the lower branch of the national legislature by around 5 majority. Control of the next United States senate continues to be in doubt with the national headquarters of both parties still stoutly claiming control. The margin of control in the next senate will be exceedingly close.

Governor James M. Cox was re-elected Tuesday, defeating former Gov. Willis by close to 18,000. The remainder of the democratic state ticket is still in doubt. Indications are that the republicans will control the house branch of the legislature, there being 33 members to elect, republicans having fifteen, democrats thirteen, with five districts in doubt, and the republicans needing only two more members to be in control. Regardless of political complexion of the legislature, it is believed to be dry in both branches and will ratify the federal dry amendment.

CHRISTMAS BOXES FOR OUR SOLDIER BOYS

Public is Told How to Send Gifts to Men Overseas.

Bear these facts in mind when packing your Christmas parcels for soldiers overseas:
Nothing should go in a Christmas parcel which will not keep fresh from the time of packing until Christmas.
Dried fruits and other food products should be packed in small tin or wooden boxes one-quarter to one-half pound size.
Hard candy including chocolate, would probably be safe in tin foil or heavy cardboard, but no soft chocolates nor anything that could possibly be crushed should be used as the remaining contents of the package might be spoiled thereby.
Several dainties packed in oblong tin boxes holding each a quarter of a pound will provide a better variety for a packet than a larger quantity of a single confection.
No liquid or articles packed in glass should be placed in the package.
For wrapping the gifts use a khaki colored handkerchief twenty-seven inches square.
Don't wrap up and tie, nor paste your label on the package yourself. This work must be done by the inspectors only.
No package must exceed three pounds in weight when wrapped and sealed ready for mailing.
Mailing Christmas Boxes
On Thursday, November 14 a committee of the Red Cross will be at Canfield postoffice to receive, examine, wrap, and put upon the boxes the Overseas label. If you have not received a label from the one overseas to whom you wish to send a gift there will be no use in coming.
Those who ordered Christmas boxes for Overseas gifts can get the same by calling at the home of Mrs. W. P. Hollister, Court street. Call and get your box at any time.

Save money and your wife's back by getting Cole's High Oven Range. It makes work easy and coal bills light.

THE FROST SPIRIT

He comes, he comes, the Frost Spirit comes! You may trace his foot steps now
On the naked woods and the blasted fields and the brown hill's withered brow.
He has smitten the leaves of the old gray trees where their pleasant green came forth,
And the winds which follow wherever he goes, have shaken them down to earth.
He comes, he comes, the Frost Spirit comes!—from the frozen Labrador—
From the icy bridge of the northern seas, where the white bear wanders o'er—
Where the fisherman's soil is stiff with ice, and the luckless form below
In the coldest cold of the lingering night into marble statues grow.
He comes, he comes, the Frost Spirit comes!—on the rushing northern blast,
And the dark Norwegian pines have bowed as his fearful breath went past.
With an unscathed wing he has hurried on, where the fires of Hecla glow
On the darkly beautiful sky above and the ancient ice below.
He comes, he comes, the Frost Spirit comes!—and the quiet lake shall feel
The torpid touch of his glazing breath, and ring to the skater's heel;
And the streams which danced on the broken rocks, or sank to the leaping grass,
Shall bow again to their winter chain, and in mournful silence pass.
He comes, he comes, the Frost Spirit comes!—let us meet him as we may,
And turn with the light of the parlor fire his evil power away;
And gather closer the circle round, when the firelight dances high,
And laugh at the shriek of the baffled fiend as his sounding wing goes by!

THE PORTER'S DILEMMA.

A Very Simple Process If He Followed the Advice.

The porter was greatly perplexed.

At High Polsover a lady with a long net entered the train. She was a middle-aged, tall, angular, tailor-made woman, and she looked sternly at the commercial traveler in the seat opposite through her lorgnette. Before seating herself she opened the carriage window. At Hildon Cross another woman came in.

She had fluffy hair and an appealing look in her blue eyes. She sat down and glanced at the open window and shivered pathetically; then she looked at the commercial traveler.

"I shall be frozen to death!" cried the fluffy-haired lady.

"If this window is closed, I shall suffocate!" cried the other woman.

The porter opened his mouth. He started to raise the window. Then he retreated. Dazed, he turned appealingly to the commercial traveler.

Both the women also turned to the commercial traveler. That gentleman rose, passed by the ladies, opened the door to the platform and went out, followed by the porter.

"And what, sir," said the porter, "would you say as 'ow I should do, sir?"

"It's quite 'simple,'" said the commercial traveler. Leave the window as it is, open, till one lady is frozen to death; then close it and suffocate the other. I'm going forward for the rest of the trip."—London Opinion.

ADVICE.

"I never know how to act when I meet a baby. I always feel like a fool."
"All you have to do is to act the way you feel!"

Going Some.

A guest in a Cincinnati hotel was shot and killed. The negro porter who heard the shooting was a witness at the trial.

"How many shots did you hear?" asked the lawyer.

"Two shots, sah," he replied.

"How far apart were they?"

"Bout like dis way," explained the negro, clapping his hands with an interval of about a second between them.

"Where were you when the first shot was fired?"

"Shinin' a gemman's shoe in de basement of de hotel."

"Where were you when the second shot was fired?"

"Ah was a passin' de Big Fo' depot."

Modern Science.

John, on his return from Sunday-school, announced with some interest that the Arnold boys had capsize their sailboat and had been picked up nearly drowned and brought ashore by Captain Jim.

"That comes of sailing on Sundays," snapped auntie.

"Oh, no," explained John with disconcerting superiority, "Captain Jim said it was because they had the sheet made fast."

Glances.

He would have been glad to exchange glances with her.

But a fair exchange were no robbery.

And she chose rather to steal a glance when she thought he wasn't looking.

"Oh, woman, woman!" he murmured, but dared not reproach her openly.

A Sailor's Prayer.

"O Lord, I am no common beggar; I do not trouble Thee every day; for I never prayed to Thee before; and if it please Thee to deliver me this once, I will never pray to Thee again as long as I live."—E. S. Bates in the Atlantic.

Touring in the Rockies.

"What's that?" inquired Mr. Chuggins, excitedly.

"Stage-robbers," replied the chauffeur. "That shot is a signal to stop."

"What a relief! I thought we'd had another blow-out!"

Heed the Small Things

It is the easiest thing in the world to squander 5 cents or 10 cents a day.

It is nearly as easy to save it.

And those small amounts, when placed here at 5 per cent compounded, will in a few years total to hundreds of dollars.
